ANNUAL REPORT

Connecting People Who Care with Causes that Matter...Forever.

WHAT IS A COMMUNITY FOUNDATION?

Like its counterparts in cities across the nation, the Foundation is:

- A collection of gifts from generous local citizens, mostly invested in long-term endowment funds, that will benefit our community forever.
- A philanthropic center where donors may set up their professionally managed funds without incurring the expense involved in operating a private foundation.

The Williamsburg Community Foundation is your partner in philanthropy.

You can make a gift, large or small, to support any area of community life through WCF.

A MESSAGE FROM MARGARET BECK PRITCHARD

Chairman of the Board 2014-2015

Margaret Beck Pritchard

We are pleased to announce that 2014 was a great year for the Williamsburg Community Foundation. It began with red roses and a swing band as the 15th Anniversary Gala brought hundreds of people together to celebrate the Foundation's support of greater Williamsburg. That event raised over $90,000 for our work. At the gala, we announced the creation of the Founders Award for Vision and Excellence. The first award was presented by Joseph Montgomery, one of the Foundation's original board members, to John Jamison for his efforts to grow this organization.

Summer brought other exciting news. The Foundation was given the gift of a new home. Hope and Bobby Beck donated three office condos at Jamestown Office Park, which greatly expanded our office space and now provide a rent-free home for our staff and volunteers.

A record number of grants were awarded to local nonprofit organizations at our fall grant luncheon. The $15,000 Founders Award grant was presented to Williamsburg Faith in Action in honor of John Jamison along with an additional $108,000 to 23 other nonprofit organizations. Many of these grants were supported by donor-advised fund holders of the Foundation, who chose to help support nonprofit organizations that applied for Foundation grants.

The good news and positive publicity from these events brought the organization more recognition throughout the year. As you read through the report, you will learn more about the Foundation's work over the last year. Because of your support, we had a record year of gifts received, grants and scholarships awarded and over a million-dollar growth in assets.

DONOR PROFILE: JANE & BOB TAYLOR

Jane and Bob Taylor didn't come to Williamsburg 15 years ago to do needlepoint, garden or golf (although they do all these things). After an already successful career in finance, Bob took a position as Senior Vice President of Colonial Williamsburg, and Jane followed five years later upon her retirement as a partner with Ernst and Young. Outside of the work arena, both have lent their skills in finance to many of the nonprofit organizations that make this community work. As Bob puts it, "There are a lot of retirees that come here, but they don't just retire, they provide extraordinary skills for the community. They serve on the visiting faculty at the college, on other boards..." Jane continues this thought, "You can get as engaged or not as you want to be. It's a very welcoming place for people who want to make a difference and give back."

Active in numerous organizations over the past 15 years, they have served on boards or volunteered, consulting for the Williamsburg Symphonia, the Williamsburg Health Foundation and the City of Williamsburg Audit Committee, among others. Jane and Bob work with the Williamsburg Community Foundation both as volunteers (Jane is a past trustee) and as the creators of an unrestricted endowment fund that allows the Foundation the most latitude in selecting charitable recipients. "Our current assessment of community needs may not be relevant in twenty years or so," Bob says. "It's the changing needs of the community that the Community Foundation does a very good job of understanding and that our fund supports."

Jane and Bob Taylor

"There continue to be so many unmet needs in our community," Jane says, which is why it's important to the couple to give locally. She continued, "Williamsburg is our home. We want to make sure it stays a vital community."

COMPETITIVE GRANT RECIPIENTS

Grant recipients on this list applied for a grant through the Foundation's competitive process. Each received support from the Foundation's Community Endowment Funds. Several of the Foundation's generous donor-advised fund holders have also chosen to support WCF's competitive grant applicants as funding partners. Those grants are also included on this list.

TRIBUTE TO JOHN JAMISON

In late February (2015) the Foundation, and the entire Williamsburg community, lost a stalwart supporter. John Jamison was known by many for his role as a community philanthropist. He served in the Navy and was a partner with Goldman Sachs before being recruited by the College of William and Mary to become dean of its school of business in 1983. When John retired from the business school in 1990, he became President of the Mariners' Museum in Newport News and then retired again in 1992. Not long after, John and a group of local leaders founded the Williamsburg Community Trust.

When John moved to Williamsburg, it still had many of the hallmarks of a small town. John watched Williamsburg grow and change over the next 33 years and he did his best to influence it for the better. John was a donor, but he took his role beyond that for many of the organizations that he loved. His vision and passion were legendary to all who knew him.

When John launched the Chairman's Challenge in 2007 upon his retirement as chairman of the board of trustees, he did it with characteristic enthusiasm. He not only put up $300,000 in matching dollars, he devised the method for the matching which encouraged people to get their foot in the door of the Foundation. He looked around the community to seek people who had the skills and interest in giving back to the area, and recruited those people to become part of the Foundation family. John regarded every Foundation donor as a personal connection. He also went out of his way to help the organizations the Foundation supported. The Foundation's grant award luncheon was one of his favorite events. He loved that everyone who attended came away knowing a little bit more about Williamsburg, hopefully sparking new ideas and collaboration. He saw in the Community Foundation something akin to his own vision of giving back; a conduit for giving and a fulcrum of ideas for our community.

One of his last schemes promises to bring together two organizations that he valued. John established the Peter and the Wolf Fund at the Williamsburg Community Foundation, which will enable the Williamsburg Symphonia to perform "Peter and the Wolf" by Sergei Prokofiev in each elementary school in greater Williamsburg in 2020. John had a history with Peter and the Wolf. When he heard it as a child, it taught him about music. Music was one of the great loves of his life, which he carried with him everywhere, often making up little ditties to fit the occasion. He actively worked to bring a production of "Peter and the Wolf" to Williamsburg. Five years ago when it was performed, he donated his time and his melodic voice to be the narrator of the piece. This past January, he was too ill to be involved personally, but he underwrote productions in every elementary school in W-JCC and even managed to attend several of the concerts. Hearing the children experience the sounds of the individual instruments for the first time brought him joy.

John's legacy for Williamsburg will live on through the gifts that he created at the Foundation and in the memories of all who felt his influence in their lives. Gifts received in his memory will be added to the Peter and the Wolf Fund.

FOUNDERS AWARD GRANT: FAITH IN ACTION

In recognition of John Jamison's significant contributions to enriching the greater Williamsburg community, the Founders Award for Vision and Excellence was awarded for the first time this year to Faith in Action, as start-up funding for the organization's newest initiative, the Resource Visitor Program. "Our mission is to help seniors and adults with a chronic illness or physical disability remain independent and in their homes," says Rita Smith, the nonprofit's director. "One thing we've found with seniors is that they're reluctant to ask for help, for fear of losing their independence, for fear of being taken advantage of, and some of them are just too proud."

The new program will partner with local institutions, both religious and civic, in order to make connections between seniors and the community resources that are available to assist them. "We'll be training five to ten volunteers from each organization, people who are already familiar or have a relationship with the people we want to help. If they see someone they've seen in church or they remember from a Kiwanis meeting, they just see a friendly face and they're more apt to talk than they would be with a stranger or someone from social services. And this person will be able to connect them with the resources that are available based on whatever needs they may have."

With funding from WCF's Founders Award, Rita was able to hire Sandy Liebler to coordinate the program and its volunteers. "Part of the training is just to give our volunteers some resource information so that when they make a visit they can offer solutions, or tap into the available knowledge and pass it on," she states. "We're also going to give pointers on making visits friendly, so no one is going to enter a household with a clipboard. That's a barrier that we want to avoid. Instead, we'd like it to be a conversation."

Eventually, both Rita and Sandy envision that the program will be self-sustaining. "The idea is that these organizations will be able to sustain this service on their own," Sandy says. And for those seniors who don't have a group affiliation, the mission is to reach them, too. "Sandy will be training Faith in Action volunteers to conduct these resource visits outside of our partner organizations," Rita states. "Aging doesn't discriminate, so we don't discriminate. From those who live in rented apartments to those who live in gated communities, it's all the same. Once you reach a certain age, the needs are the same."

A Faith in Action volunteer provides information to one of the organization's clients to help her identify and navigate the services available to help her to age in place

LEGACY SOCIETY

Members of the Legacy Society have committed to supporting the Foundation through their estate plan, retirement account or life insurance policy. An estate gift may be used to establish a named fund or be added to any fund at the Foundation. These future gifts will play a critical role in further strengthening this community for generations to come.

DONOR-ADVISED FUNDS

The Donor-Advised Fund is a highly flexible option for donors who wish to be actively involved in their choice of grant recipients. Through this type of fund, a donor may support charities in the greater Williamsburg area and beyond. It is an excellent alternative to a private foundation, with greater ease of establishment and superior tax benefits. A Donor-Advised Fund may be established with a minimum gift of $10,000. Trevor Times was a Jamestown High School senior, Class of 2012, when he died in a tragic swimming accident just weeks before his graduation. He was to have attended East Carolina University on a golf scholarship. The Trevor J. Times Memorial Scholarship is given annually by his family and friends to a student who exhibits the characteristics that made Trevor special: kindness, generosity of spirit, a sense of inclusiveness, a sense of humor and dedication to studies.
